City's General Manager of Corporate Business Planning moves on

Edmonton, February 5, 2007 – The City of Edmonton's General Manager of Corporate Business Planning, Peter Tarnawsky, is leaving the city effective immediately in response to various organizational adjustments.

"Peter established a solid foundation for corporate business planning. Building on that foundation, structural adjustments are now required to extend corporate operations and governance to ensure the City is effectively positioned to achieve its objectives," said City General Manager Al Maurer. "I appreciate Peter's contribution and wish him well in his new pursuits."

The City engaged a consultant to review the organization in the fall of 2007. Results and decisions related to that review are expected to be announced in the coming weeks. Recruitment for any positions remaining unfilled after those adjustments will commence immediately.
